

Sunday

My sweet friend.

In a desperate hurry. I write just one word to say that I shall be in Shiffnards business on Sunday. next.
The Turton will instruct (my mother & myself) to take us to some silver plate workers to select my sisters plated goods for housekeeping. I shall be very busy all the day - but I shall leave the station at Sheffield for Masbro. to the north at 4.50. P.M. will you come to the Station I go on to Masbro. with me where I am to meet a friend who comes from London & who brings a small bundle of thrip - which I have had put up for you as pattens. an old body or two - which will give you an idea about making bodies. - Don't think I have neglected you. in not writing I have been so very much Enjoyed this last week. that I have hardly known whether I have been upon my head or my heels. as you can well believe. Susan was married on Monday. & I have been now nervous till that I can describe to you.

God bless you dear Helen

Dear me faithfully

Your attached friend
