

Hotel Canterbury, Friday Oct. the 9th

Dear Miss Bushman.

I write to you immediately on leaving from the Neighbourhood: to say that I hope & trust you will dine with us on Sunday week: - with Mr. & Mrs. if she shall so please. - It will be merely a business dinner, & myself will arrive ^{at home} late on the morning of Saturday the 10th - there can be no trifles - alas! - nor sarcophagus pudding - only bones to pick: & jestings to interchange - & measures to be taken that the books be written - smaller nor taller. than the present public shall please: - Do you mind dining at five? - & the neighbours shall come in to tea, when we have lusted our rooms. - My first impulse was to pack up soul & body immediately

On receiving yr. - then it occurred to me that all the work you will be busy at business: & that very probably - the day I mention may be the ~~the~~ earliest you could really devote to an affair: & I know but too well, to me full of interest & importance: which may lead to matters you may not be disinclined to take part in: - so that I am acting, I hope, for the best, against my impatience, in thus bidding you to a conference right day hence.
Pray let me find a little note on my table, to say it will do. - You know I work very quickly - so let us but once decide on the useful alterations: & they will be accom-plished directly. - I dare say you will find that

He will
I hope
I shall
I hope
I shall
I shall

find that I have anticipated you already.

Which of you will be made the most burden by the tidings of the "Pis" of Mr. ^{late cardinal} ~~Warr.~~ to be forgotten ~~himself~~? - Only fancy my running against him - in the Cafe, No. 11. - but in La Scala, at Milan

He asked affectionately, for those "very pleasing women" - Did You ever think you should live to be called such a true thing? -

I hope ~~to~~ find you quite well: - My red legged device its duty. & is so, too. - Mean-
- while, believe me to be rather hastily, very crazily, but thoroughly sincerely yr.
