

ON RECEIVING A CROWN OF IVY FROM JOHN KEATS.

A crown of ivy! I submit my head To the young laurel that gives its young, its true, But with a right to a poet's lot...

STRUGGLE OF BRAVELY.

Oh! sweet is the fair face of nature when spring, With living flow'rs, and snow in glory hath spinn'd Hill and dale, and the morning in its own wings...

Reviews.

THE DEMOCRATIC REVIEW OF BRITISH AND FOREIGN POLITICS, HISTORY, AND LITERATURE.

Edited by G. Julian Harney. No. VII, December. London: E. Mackenzie, 5, Wine Office-court, Fleet-street.

SOCIAL REFORMS.

Need I prolong the enumeration of the advantages that would result from the adoption of the new system? In the industry of man, as in every successive discovery of science is a calamity...

THE URBIDGE SPIRIT OF FREEDOM.

Conducted by WORKING MEN. December. London: J. Watson, Queen's-head Passage, Paternoster-row.

"Why has the cause of the People not triumphed?" "The Condition of the Labourer," "The People's Living Martyrs," "Poets to Progress," are the titles of the principal contents of this number of the Spirit of Freedom.

To recapitulate:

A social revolution must be attempted. First, because the present social order is too full of misery, of miseries, of tyrannies, to be able to subsist any longer.

FRANCE AND ROME.

Was it not at the thought of Rome thus profaned, that by French soldiers, that in the month of June, France burst with indignation when the parliamentarian debates called forth such tragic echoes in our country...

REYNOLDS'S POLITICAL INSTRUCTOR.

Edited by G. W. M. Reynolds. Part I. London: J. Dicks, Wellington Street North, Strand.

The first monthly part of this exceedingly cheap and good pennyworth of political information fully justifies the praise we bestowed on the first number.

DEATH OF THE QUEEN DOWAGER.

On Sunday last, a London Gazette Extraordinary was issued announcing the death of the Queen Adelaide, in the 74th year of her age.

THE GUARDS AND THE LIVER.

The Guards and the Liver. The Steels relate the story of a man who was killed by a bullet from the liver of a bear.

THE URBIDGE SPIRIT OF FREEDOM.

Conducted by WORKING MEN. December. London: J. Watson, Queen's-head Passage, Paternoster-row.

"Why has the cause of the People not triumphed?" "The Condition of the Labourer," "The People's Living Martyrs," "Poets to Progress," are the titles of the principal contents of this number of the Spirit of Freedom.

EFFECTS OF "MODERATION."

What a mournful scene the world presents today! The torch of liberty has for awhile been extinguished in the waters of the Danube and the blood of our brothers; many a brave man has perished in death; many a noble champion of the people is in exile, and in prison.

THE PROFESSIONIST. No. XI. Weekly Series.

London: J. Watson, Queen's-head Passage, Paternoster-row.

We notice several good articles in this number of the Professionist, particularly one on the late trials at Versailles, from which we extract the following spirited observations:

The Operatives' Free Press. Conducted by WORKING MEN. December. Cambridge: J. Nichols, Fitzroy-square. London: J. Watson, Queen's-head Passage, Paternoster-row.

This number of the Free Press contains articles on "The Closing Year," "The National Reform League," "The Labour Question," &c. From an article on "Man's Mission" we extract the following possible argument in favour of the new order of things:

If a thief meets us on the highway and demands "money or life," we are not very particular as to the means we use, so long as we succeed in overpowering him, and this is unquestionably right; but the thief who would take from us that which he has no right, it is a duty and a virtue to oppose our strength and influence against the power of wrong and injustice, wherever they exist.

REYNOLDS'S POLITICAL INSTRUCTOR.

Edited by G. W. M. Reynolds. Part I. London: J. Dicks, Wellington Street North, Strand.

The first monthly part of this exceedingly cheap and good pennyworth of political information fully justifies the praise we bestowed on the first number.

DEATH OF THE QUEEN DOWAGER.

On Sunday last, a London Gazette Extraordinary was issued announcing the death of the Queen Adelaide, in the 74th year of her age.

THE GUARDS AND THE LIVER.

The Guards and the Liver. The Steels relate the story of a man who was killed by a bullet from the liver of a bear.

THE URBIDGE SPIRIT OF FREEDOM.

Conducted by WORKING MEN. December. London: J. Watson, Queen's-head Passage, Paternoster-row.

EFFECTS OF "MODERATION."

What a mournful scene the world presents today! The torch of liberty has for awhile been extinguished in the waters of the Danube and the blood of our brothers; many a brave man has perished in death; many a noble champion of the people is in exile, and in prison.

THE PROFESSIONIST. No. XI. Weekly Series.

London: J. Watson, Queen's-head Passage, Paternoster-row.

We notice several good articles in this number of the Professionist, particularly one on the late trials at Versailles, from which we extract the following spirited observations:

and on the day following a bill received the royal assent...

and on the day following a bill received the royal assent granting in the event of Queen Adelaide surviving the King a provision of £100,000 per annum for the maintenance of her Majesty during life.

and on the day following a bill received the royal assent granting in the event of Queen Adelaide surviving the King a provision of £100,000 per annum for the maintenance of her Majesty during life.

THE CHAMPION OF WHAT IS TRUE AND RIGHT.

Edited by G. W. M. Reynolds. Part I. London: J. Dicks, Wellington Street North, Strand.

The first monthly part of this exceedingly cheap and good pennyworth of political information fully justifies the praise we bestowed on the first number.

DEATH OF THE QUEEN DOWAGER.

On Sunday last, a London Gazette Extraordinary was issued announcing the death of the Queen Adelaide, in the 74th year of her age.

THE GUARDS AND THE LIVER.

The Guards and the Liver. The Steels relate the story of a man who was killed by a bullet from the liver of a bear.

THE URBIDGE SPIRIT OF FREEDOM.

Conducted by WORKING MEN. December. London: J. Watson, Queen's-head Passage, Paternoster-row.

EFFECTS OF "MODERATION."

What a mournful scene the world presents today! The torch of liberty has for awhile been extinguished in the waters of the Danube and the blood of our brothers; many a brave man has perished in death; many a noble champion of the people is in exile, and in prison.

THE PROFESSIONIST. No. XI. Weekly Series.

London: J. Watson, Queen's-head Passage, Paternoster-row.

We notice several good articles in this number of the Professionist, particularly one on the late trials at Versailles, from which we extract the following spirited observations:

and on the day following a bill received the royal assent...

and on the day following a bill received the royal assent granting in the event of Queen Adelaide surviving the King a provision of £100,000 per annum for the maintenance of her Majesty during life.

and on the day following a bill received the royal assent granting in the event of Queen Adelaide surviving the King a provision of £100,000 per annum for the maintenance of her Majesty during life.

THE CHAMPION OF WHAT IS TRUE AND RIGHT.

Edited by G. W. M. Reynolds. Part I. London: J. Dicks, Wellington Street North, Strand.

The first monthly part of this exceedingly cheap and good pennyworth of political information fully justifies the praise we bestowed on the first number.

DEATH OF THE QUEEN DOWAGER.

On Sunday last, a London Gazette Extraordinary was issued announcing the death of the Queen Adelaide, in the 74th year of her age.

THE GUARDS AND THE LIVER.

The Guards and the Liver. The Steels relate the story of a man who was killed by a bullet from the liver of a bear.

THE URBIDGE SPIRIT OF FREEDOM.

Conducted by WORKING MEN. December. London: J. Watson, Queen's-head Passage, Paternoster-row.

EFFECTS OF "MODERATION."

What a mournful scene the world presents today! The torch of liberty has for awhile been extinguished in the waters of the Danube and the blood of our brothers; many a brave man has perished in death; many a noble champion of the people is in exile, and in prison.

THE PROFESSIONIST. No. XI. Weekly Series.

London: J. Watson, Queen's-head Passage, Paternoster-row.

We notice several good articles in this number of the Professionist, particularly one on the late trials at Versailles, from which we extract the following spirited observations:

and on the day following a bill received the royal assent...

and on the day following a bill received the royal assent granting in the event of Queen Adelaide surviving the King a provision of £100,000 per annum for the maintenance of her Majesty during life.

and on the day following a bill received the royal assent granting in the event of Queen Adelaide surviving the King a provision of £100,000 per annum for the maintenance of her Majesty during life.

THE CHAMPION OF WHAT IS TRUE AND RIGHT.

Edited by G. W. M. Reynolds. Part I. London: J. Dicks, Wellington Street North, Strand.

The first monthly part of this exceedingly cheap and good pennyworth of political information fully justifies the praise we bestowed on the first number.

DEATH OF THE QUEEN DOWAGER.

On Sunday last, a London Gazette Extraordinary was issued announcing the death of the Queen Adelaide, in the 74th year of her age.

THE GUARDS AND THE LIVER.

The Guards and the Liver. The Steels relate the story of a man who was killed by a bullet from the liver of a bear.

THE URBIDGE SPIRIT OF FREEDOM.

Conducted by WORKING MEN. December. London: J. Watson, Queen's-head Passage, Paternoster-row.

EFFECTS OF "MODERATION."

What a mournful scene the world presents today! The torch of liberty has for awhile been extinguished in the waters of the Danube and the blood of our brothers; many a brave man has perished in death; many a noble champion of the people is in exile, and in prison.

THE PROFESSIONIST. No. XI. Weekly Series.

London: J. Watson, Queen's-head Passage, Paternoster-row.

We notice several good articles in this number of the Professionist, particularly one on the late trials at Versailles, from which we extract the following spirited observations:

and on the day following a bill received the royal assent...